The Graduate School of Information Sciences (GSIS) consists of four departments: Computer and Mathematical Sciences, System Information Sciences, Human-Social Information Sciences and Applied Information Sciences.

GSIS aims not only to conduct cutting-edge education and research within these various academic disciplines, but also to advance wide-ranging interdisciplinary research. Students can therefore opt to engage in areas other than their original speciality. We welcome applications from ambitious individuals aspiring to create “Information Science” for the new era.’

Admission Policy

To foster individuals who can contribute to GSIS’s goal of creating “New Information Science,” we promote the acceptance of students who aim to further develop the fruits GSIS has reaped so far, students who aspire to actively pursue research across a range of disciplines, students hoping to broaden their research area, and overseas students and mature students from diverse backgrounds.

Assistance Program for Doctoral Students

As of FY2006, GSIS has been operating an assistance program for doctoral students with the aim of providing economic support and a suitable learning environment for graduate students with a high level of specialization.

5. Selection method

1) Advancing students from GSIS

Selection will be based upon results from the two-year master's program and an individual assessment, etc.

2) General transfer-admission applicants, advancing students from other graduate schools of Tohoku University and applicants for transfer-admission selection for overseas students, etc.

Selection will in principle be based on a combination of written examinations, an oral examination, academic transcript and other submitted documents.

Applicants should refer to "the list of laboratories" on pp.19-22 or GSIS website (<https://www.is.tohoku.ac.jp/en/laboratory/>) to select the laboratory (area) to which they wish to be assigned and sit the written and oral examinations for the specialized subject group specified by that laboratory (in that area).

Subject group codes, laboratory codes and departments are shown in Table 1.

The content of examinations for each specialized subject group is shown on pp.9-12(Schedule I) and pp.14-17(Schedule II).

Where the applicant is advancing from another graduate school at Tohoku University and their prospective supervisor will be one of the persons examining their thesis, their master's program results may be sufficient to exempt them from the written examinations.

Emphasis will also be placed on the relationship between the research area in which the candidate wishes to major and their work and research experience to date.

The examination dates, start times and the examination content for the various specialized subject groups can be found on pp.13(Schedule I) or pp.18(Schedule II). Examination venues will be the same as for (2) General transfer-admission applicants, advancing students from other graduate schools of Tohoku University and applicants for transfer-admission selection for overseas students, etc. noted above.

7. Application for Long-Term Study System

GSIS can, based on the results of a review, give permission for a student to complete their study program(Note 10) systematically over a period of more than three years, the standard completion period, in response to circumstances such as the student's having a job (Note 9) Students to whom this system is applied are called "long-term students."

Note 10: The term of study cannot extend past six years. However, students can request that the permitted term of study be shortened. In principle, there will be no special curriculum set for long-term students.
